CALHOUN DISGRUNTLED.

He Found the White House Atmosphere Chilly, Because McKinley Wanted the Opposite of the Truth About Cuba.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10.—Judge Calhoun will return to Danville, Ill., and if all signs do not fall he has gone to stay. It is pretty sure that the President does not care to hear him again on the Cuban question, and it is also equally certain that the Judge will not willingly again place himself in the frigid atmosphere of the White House. To a close friend Mr. Calhoun had this to say:

"I am completely disappointed at the way my report was received, the scant attention which was paid to me and the evident displeasure with which the President received the facts I told him. I verily believe that Mr. McKinley wanted and expected the reports which have been sent from Cuba both by the press and through the Consuls to be disproved by my report, but as I was sent there, as far as I knew, to get at the truth of what was going on, I could only report things as they are, and thus verify the statements of Consul-General Lee and others. I was placed in an embarrassing position on the island, having no official status, and now, when I come home with something to tell, I am coldly received, just because my report is the opposite of what the Administration wanted."

THE REASON FOR MURPHY'S SNEAK.

WON'T TRY CASES WHEN THE JONESSES ARE PRESENT.

AFRAID TO FACE THE MUSIC.

At Least This Is the Yarn He Tells to a Reporter Who Found Him at Home.

Judge Murphy, who was elected to preside over the St. Louis Court of Criminal Correction, was taking life easy, while five of the most important cases that have come up in the tribunal where he is supposed to administer justice were juggled with and then continued until the legal tangle due to his absence could be straightened out.

He had caused it to be stated that he was out of town and Louis Zepp, the clerk, had told the attorneys and others interested that his honor had left for some point in the country on important business and would be detained there till Monday. Mr. Zepp said that the Judge had taken an Iron Mountain train, but that he was not aware of the point where he had disembarked.

But all the while that attorneys, witnesses and clerks were worried as to what to do Wednesday morning, the Judge was resting upon a sofa in his home, 4974 Lotus street.

He was not sick; he was not ill; he had no other business to attend to. He simply shirked his duty to gratify a personal spite, and this he admitted to a reporter later in the day.

The story of the annoyance and confusion caused by this Judge's action was told in Wednesday's Post-Dispatch. It was an hour after court should have opened before a provisional Judge, in the person of Benjamin F. Kiene, could be appointed, and then, after he had ascended the bench, the case was postponed because he was not eligible because he at present holds the office of State Senator.

As error might creep into trials before him, the State's Attorney decided to postpone all cases and consequently one day was lost. The State had been put to the expense of a session without any result and a host of witnesses had lost a half day.

A reporter for the Post-Dispatch found Judge Murphy at his home on Lotus street Wednesday afternoon. He was in the garden, to one side of the pleasant house that is on the corner next to King's highway, and there he received a reporter. His honor was quite picturesque as he stood among the early spring vegetables that were poking their heads of green above the brown soil, and he leaned upon the handle of a hoe while he conversed, occasionally emphasizing his remarks with a dig at a presumptuous weed that was within reach.

"He was clad in a white cotton shirt that was open at the neck and exposed a well-tanned chest. His trousers had evidently been in the garden many a time before, and had become frayed around the bottoms, because the Judge had forgotten to turn them out of the reach of the heavy square heels that were on the thick leather boots.

His expressive bald head that has grown to be such a familiar sight rising above the desk in the Court of Criminal Correction, was covered with a tall straw hat that years ago was new. His face was flushed from the warmth of midday, and his arms, that were bare from the elbow, were as tanned as was the V-shape of the chest that was exposed.

"And what can I do for you?" he asked, after he had indicated with the hoe handle just how the reporter should step so as not to touch any of the vegetables. Thus guided, the visitor approached carefully between a row of early beans and some pea vines that were looking longingly up for something to cling to.

"Judge, the report down-town is that you are out of town; indeed it was so given out in court."

"Well, I'm not," he replied. "This is pretty far out, but it is within the city limits.
However, I am going out of town. I expect to leave on the Merchants' Exchange excursion."

"When will you be back on the bench?"
"That I can not say. Possibly not till Monday."

"They say, Judge, that you absented yourself so as not to try the cases of the established judges that were up for this morning."

"What did they do with those cases?"

he asked, becoming suddenly much interested.

The reporter informed him that nothing had been done and told of the appointment of State Senator Kiene as Special Judge.

His Honor frowned. "That is very unfortunate," he said. "Of course the Senator is not qualified to sit, and Mr. Mulvihill did what was right. When they wanted a Judge why didn't they go to Zachariae.
He is the one who should have appointed the provisional occupant of the bench, and I thought they would go to him."

"But, Judge, now they have got into a muddle will you not come down and resume your seat on the bench?"

"I shall do nothing of the sort," he replied, testily. "Let them fight it out."

Nothing was said for fully a minute and His Honor made a vigorous onslaught upon some weeds, then resting again on the hoe handle he asked:

"Do you wish to know the true reason why I did not attend court this morning and why I shall not go there this week?"

The reporter said that it was to learn this that he had come out on Lotus street.

"Well," said the Judge, slowly and deliberately, "I shall never try any case in which the Jonesesses are interested. I have such an opinion of them that I could not do them justice from the bench and it is better that I remain away."

Class reference by Judge Murphy was to Col. C. H. Jones, editor of the Post-Dispatch, and Mr. G. W. Jones, Chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners. The cases which the Judge dodged compel the attendance in court of the Chairman of the Board.

"Then," the reporter asked, "you will not try any election cases?"

"I shall not try a case in which any one of the Jonesesses is interested," he repeated.

"And if the cases are not disposed of Friday will you take them up?"

"No, I shall remain away until they are disposed of."

"Why do you take this stand?"

"Because," said Judge Murphy, deliberately, "they are such liars."

"Then, Judge, you do not find life on the bench of the Court of Criminal Correction a pleasant one?"

"No, I do not, for the reason that every newspaper in St. Louis lies about me and all the editors are liars. Now, for instance, look at the case of the prize fighters. The newspapers reported that I discharged the men because there was no written agreement. Why, I could find any 8-year-old child to tell me that I did not."

MR. ROBBER LOST A BIG FAT WIFE.

SHE TOOK CHILDREN, COWS AND OTHER IMPEDIMENTS.

HER HUSBAND'S TALE OF WOE.

Says His Wife Offered Him $1,000 to Leave Her and He's Sorry
He Refused.

William Robben, after peddling milk all day, returned to his home, 2846 Chippewa street, Wednesday evening, to find that his wife and five children, all of the household furniture, his clothes, a gold watch and chain, $75 and five of his best cows were missing.

George Good, son of the landlady, who lived up-stairs, was also missing. Robben's clothes fit Good.

On the front door-step Robben found this note:

"Dear William: I leave you twelve cows in the shed, which will do a little towards keeping you alive. Your wife,

"THERESA."

The woe of Robben have been many, including infidelity and a fortune-teller, but it was this last blow that caused the dairy man to visit the Four Courts Thursday and ask the police to find his cattle and his wife. He wanted the cows because of their intrinsic value, and he wanted his wife because she had violated a compact whereby she had agreed to give him $1,000 of Good's money if he (Robben) would leave her.

A year ago this month Mrs. Robben visited a fortune-teller and paid $1 to find out that her husband was going to die in May of 1897.
Mrs. Robben said she told him that for $1,000 on the strength of this forecast, and a week later she offered him $1,000 if he would leave her. Robben said she told him that she could get the money from Good. Robben declined to give up his claim on her affections for a paltry thousand so then she said that any time he would leave her before May, 1897, she would give him the amount.

But Robben hung to his work, remained with his wife and apparently loved her and the children.

One warm afternoon last fall Robben got home earlier than usual from his milk route and earlier than he was expected. He caught his wife and Good in the stable.
She promised to be true to him after that,
and all was well in the Robben household until the last day of the month. Then Mrs.
Robben's faith in the abilities of fortune-tellers to foretell the deaths of husbands was shattered. Robben was still alive, and was healthier and wealthier than when his death was predicted.

Mrs. Robben then went to her husband and pulled the $1,000 reward from under the bed. She now offered him only $500 to leave her, and he laughed at her. But his laugh is now a groan.

Wednesday a moving van backed up to the Robben's house while he was away, and all of the household furniture was packed into it. The five children, four boys and a girl, occupied seats on top of the van, and five of the best cows in the dairy were tied behind the wagon. When the caravan moved away, a shepherd dog followed in the wake.

When Robben got home he read his wife's note of farewell, then went in search of Good, but the latter was not at home.

Thursday morning Robben again called for Good but neither was he there then.
Robben then went to the Four Courts. He regretted exceedingly he had not accepted the $1,000 a year ago and again regretted he had not accepted $500 a week ago.

He gave a description of his wife. She is 36 years old; he thinks she is pretty; large and fat and weighs 180 pounds. The police said they would see what they could do for Robben.

BOSTON BRIDE WORTH MILLIONS.

LARZ ANDERSON MARRIED TO MISS ISABELLE PERKINS.

HEIRRESS TO $17,000,000.

The Groom Is a Diplomat Formerly Attached to the American Embassy at Rome.

BOSTON, Mass., June 10.—A wedding ceremony, the character of which placed it in the rank as the grandest this city has ever seen, and which in point of the wealth represented also was first among the great weddings of the century in this country, was that whereby Larz Anderson, until very recently member of the United States diplomatic corps at Rome, Italy, and Miss Isabelle Perkins of this city, heirress to $17,000,000, to-day became husband and wife.

The bride is the daughter of Capt. George Hamilton Perkins, U. S. N., retired, and a grand-daughter of the late Wm. P. Weld of this city, whose millions she inherits together with her cousin, Mrs. Charles F.
Sprague, the wife of Congressman Sprague of Massachusetts. She is also prospective heir of $20,000,000 from her mother.

The groom is the son of a well-known Washington family, the head of which, Gen.
Nicholas Anderson, died abroad a few years ago. He is a Harvard graduate and was associated with Robert T. Lincoln in the United States Embassy at London, and later was first secretary of legation in Italy under Wayne MacVeagh.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Jackson in the Arlington Street Church at noon, and among those present were Miss Jackson, the bride's sister, and members of society of nearly every large city of the United States. The historic auditorium was beautifully decorated in bride and groom colors. The organ, a brilliant bell, one of the largest ever constructed, was suspended from the ceiling by strands of broad white satin ribbons.
Each column of the church was wound with asparagus and bay leaves, and the green ropes of long-stemmed roses trained on the vines were suspended between the pillars and across the aisle.

The reserved pews were marked off by white ribbons which at each end of the pew were knotted to hold in place a cluster of white roses.

When the hour for the performance of the ceremony arrived the organ broke into the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, and the bride party entered, preceded by ushers and bridesmaids and the maid of honor. Miss Elizabeth Anderson, sister of the groom, Miss Perkins proceeded to the altar, leaning upon the arm of her father. Two ladies, dressed as sixteenth century pages, followed the bride as the train bearers. As the bride neared the altar she was accompanied by Charles Francis Adams, the second, as best man, advanced, and meeting Miss Perkins beneath the floral bell, they stood together before the clergyman.

Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party proceeded to an opulent home on Commonwealth avenue, where the wedding breakfast was served upon a temporary balcony, which had been built in the rear of the mansion. The beautiful decorations in the church were duplicated in the home.
The bay windows were banked and garlanded with growing plants and white flowers. The bay windows were draped beautiful tapestries from corner to corner, and their folds were filled with roses. From the center of the walls of the main rooms ropes of long-stemmed roses attached to asparagus vines radiated to the ceiling.

The candelabra, supported pouches of white silk, filled with bridal roses, till the effect of burning was produced. The pre-ludes holding the presents. The breakfast tables were beautifully garnished with flowers.

After the breakfast, following which a reception was held, the couple departed for New York, en route to Europe and the far East.

The bridesmaids were: Miss Eleanor Gray, Miss Susan Dalton, Miss Theodore Knight and Miss Beattie Seabury. The gowns of the bride and bridesmaids were of the latest fashion, and the bride's gown was of heavy cream satin, lined throughout with white silk. The bride's gown was trimmed with orange blossoms and the corsage with a surprise effect, with fluffy trimmings of tulle.

COLORADO WATERSPOUT.

Stock and Bridges Swept Away and Trains Delayed.

OURAY, Colo., June 10.—A waterspout flooded the country hereabout last night.
The Republican River rose rapidly, carrying away the bridges and sweeping away and drowning stock in the valley. Trains are delayed and are running cautiously.
Hail accompanied the rain and in a few minutes fell to the depth of several inches.
Hailstones the size of hen's eggs, or even larger, fell at first and it is feared they killed cattle and horses on the ranges. So far as known at present no lives have been lost. The extent of damage to growing crops cannot be estimated, but it is feared that it is immense.

GEN. LEE'S REPORT.

It Was Obtained by the New York
Journal and Peddled Out.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 10.—The latest denial of responsibility for the premature publication of Gen. Lee's report on the Ruiz case comes from Mr. Fishback. The facts in the case are very plain. The first publication of the report was made by the Morning Journal of this city on Tuesday, the 8th. That paper peddled it to several newspapers in other parts of the country, which are making somewhat absurd claims to enterprise in the matter.

MALTSERS COMBINE.

A Syndicate Being Formed to Control the Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 10.—A meeting of maltsters to combine has been held here. The purpose is to form a syndicate with Eastern bankers, embracing at least $50,000,000 of property. It is proposed to control the malt and barley markets of Chicago, the largest in the United States, and will comprise all the larger maltsters in this market. It is believed that within thirty days the syndicate will be formed. Seymour Scott of Lyons, N. Y., is engineering the business deal and has the control of the interest of several New York bankers.

TO ESCAPE LYONCHING.

Alfred Quick, Fearing Mob Vengeance, Took His Own Life.

CINCINNATI, O., June 10.—It has developed in testimony at the inquest to-day on the death of Alfred Quick, who committed suicide, that the motive was to escape mob vengeance. Quick had been discovered in the act of an attempted criminal assault upon a 16-year-old girl, and with the Urbana incident fresh in mind, took his own life.

HERE TO INSPECT HIS COMMAND.

MAJ.-GEN. BROOKE A GUEST AT JEFFERSON BARRACKS.

SEES ROOM FOR IMPROVEMENTS

Will Not Discuss the Post's Future, but Says It Is Not in Jeopardy.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MAJ.-GEN. J. F. Brooke, commander of the Department of Missouri, is at Jefferson Barracks, making his first acquaintance with the post. He is here, he says, for the first time in his army career, to acquaint himself with the needs of the barracks, just as, in turn, he is to visit each other post in his command.

The visit, Gen. Brooke declares, has nothing to do with the movement of any troops or infantry, and he has not come to decide the fate of the barracks. He talks as if the post's future did not stand in jeopardy.

Attended by his aide, Lieut. Quay and Col.
Lee, Chief Quartermaster of the Department, Gen. Brooke reached Jefferson Barracks from Chicago Thursday morning, at 8:27 o'clock, over the Iron Mountain road.

He was received at the station with customary honors by Major Wessels, commander of the post, and Troops A, D, H, K, I and B in full dress uniform. The party alighted from the coach to the boom of cannon which was escorted down the file of troopers presenting drawn sabers.

The mule caravanary bearing the guests was escorted to the dwelling of the post commander, where Gen. Brooke is to be entertained. There was a review in the afternoon.

Gen. Brooke set about inspecting the post within an hour after his arrival. He was shown around by Major Wessels, with Orderly John Hart hovering in the wake of the warriors, awaiting their slightest pleasure. First the old gray barracks were inspected, then in turn the commissary and ordnance departments, the stables, the officers' quarters, the jail and a stray shot was taken at the old canten.

"There is nothing mysterious or secret about my visit and nothing of particular moment to it," said General Brooke. "It may be said openly that I came, first, to get acquainted with my command in assuming the new duties of Department Commander, and next, to determine upon the needs of the barracks in the way of improvements."

"Although for fourteen years I served in the Department of Missouri, before my late assignment in the Department of the Dakota, I have not hitherto visited Jefferson Barracks. So I shall have only scant time during my stay here, till Friday evening to become familiar with conditions, as I wish to know them."

"As for improvements that may be made I can not, of course, say anything. That is what I am here to inquire into. But the antiquity of many of the buildings," Gen.
Brooke continued, with a sweep of his hand toward the gray, old piles, long used as living quarters, "indicates that improvements are needed and whatever is needed, of course, will be afforded. I can not discuss the probabilities about these improvements. I will not know for some time what buildings are to be erected."

The Commander of the Missouri was asked what effect his visit might have upon the movement of troops or infantry.

"Not a bit—I am not here on anybody's else mission," he answered. "What may be determined regarding the future of Jefferson Barracks I cannot even guess at this time.
I do not hesitate to say that I know of no intention of moving away any of the troops now here, nor of bringing in any infantry, as rumor has it slanted."

"No one has any right to assume that this post is to be humiliated in rank or equipment. Indeed, proposed improvements argue quite to the contrary."

DARK INTERVIEW METHODS NOW.

FILLEY'S SALARY GRABBERS ARE GROWING DESPERATE. WILL LEGISLATE IN THE DARK.

Secretary Graves of the Council Refuses to Allow New Bills to Be Inspected.

"For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain the Ziegenhain push is peculiar." The administration is getting ready to introduce salary grab and steal bills which will not stand public scrutiny. The Uthoff bill was scrutinized and now the Uthoff bill is dead.

To save its successors from a like dire fate the tender things are to be protected from the public's rule case.

"Do you approve of the suppression of information which the public has a right to?" The Mayor dropped his wings and went away in the air.

"This is a wide open administration," he shouted. "The door of my office is open. Don't accuse this administration of suppressing news."

"But the secretary of the Council refuses to let anybody see bills in his custody."

"Well, I don't know nothing about that. They have a right to make their own rules and I won't interfere with them."

"But the secretary of the Council refuses to let anybody see bills in his custody."

"Well, I don't know nothing about that. They have a right to make their own rules and I won't interfere with them."

"Why?"

"Because the rules say I must keep it in my custody."

"Nobody wants to take it out of your custody."

"But you might make some change in it when I am not here."

"Will you allow members of the Council to see pending bills?" he said, finally. "I would let a member of the Council see a bill because I would have confidence in him. I would know that he wouldn't make any changes in it."

"When may any one else see a bill?"

"After it is printed."

"How are the newspapers to obtain information about pending measures?"

"There is a long reporter's table out there in the Council chamber where they have the privilege of hiring stenographers to take down the proceedings."

If it had occurred to Mr. Graves to make his little rule before the Uthoff bill was introduced, that atrocious measure would now be a law and the raid on the treasury would be in full blast.

The salary grab and steal bills were so artfully concealed that it took hours of study and exhaustive comparisons with existing ordinances to discover it.

Mr. Graves says the Wittenberg bill may be seen after it is printed. It will not be printed until after it is passed.

There will be no object in suppressing it then.

Nobody has seen the bill since the Committee on Ways and Means of the Council refused to let it in secret session. After that committee meeting Chairman Watson refused to let it in secret session. It could not be seen in the office of Secretary Martin. As soon as the House passed it, it was rushed over to the Council. It was now lawfully guarded under lock and key.

There is a strong suspicion that a provision has been tacked into the bill which will make it the equal in iniquity of the Uthoff bill.

As it would have been to-morrow but for the habeas corpus proceedings.

Today the necessary telegrams ordering a stay of execution were sent to Sacramento by the Governor.

The position taken by Gov. Budd is that the habeas corpus proceedings are not a stay of execution. The Governor desires that the Supreme Court pass upon the question referred by Attorney General Fitzgerald, holding that the proceedings do constitute a stay.

THE SENATE.

Agricultural Amendment to the Tariff Bill Defeated.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10.—The Senate began work at 11 o'clock today, and the tariff bill was taken up as soon as the routine business was out of the way.

Mr. Tillman (S. C.) took the floor on the pending amendment of Mr. Cannon (Utah), providing an export bounty on agricultural products. He said he desired the attention of his associates and as attendance was meagre, he noted the absence of a quorum. The call disclosed fifty-four Senators present, nine more being absent on leave. Mr. Tillman proceeded.

He said the tariff debate had disclosed a nebulous condition in the minds of Senators. The Republican Senators sat quietly, apparently controlled by the caucus, refusing to discuss the iniquities of the bill and unanimously voting for the exactions in behalf of trusts and monopolies.

The amendment was defeated.

Mr. Tillman then opened the new sugar schedule. He said there should be a single rate and refined sugar giving one-eighth of a cent additional, which would make the rate plain.

Mr. Tillman concluded and Mr. Vest took the floor to speak on the sugar schedule.

The House.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The House today passed two comparatively unimportant resolutions and then adjourned until Monday.

THE TARIFF DEBATE.

Now Believed It Will Be Over by July 20.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10.—The Republican intention to drop the proposed tariff on sugar and the increase in the beer tax moves a bar to comparatively early action on the Dingley bill in the Senate. Democratic Senators now look forward to possible adjournment by July 20, unless the Senate question the complications.

After the sugar schedule is disposed of, the beer schedule and the tobacco schedule will be only the last of the tariff debate. Mr. Tillman's action on the beer tax is in order to get protective duties on cotton and pine lumber has created such a serious breach in Democratic ranks that leaders may shorten by a week or ten days debate on the whole measure.

THE MISSOURIANS.

Prominent Ones Making a Pull for Good Jobs.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10.—Wells Blodgett of the Wash and Judge J. J. Gilchrist of Southwest Missouri, while apparently here without definite purposes, are really looking into patronage matters. Judge Blodgett was in the city to see Mr. C. K. Kerens to his application for the office of United States Attorney for the Western District of Missouri. Judge Gilchrist was seen in the city to see Mr. C. K. Kerens to his application for the office of United States Attorney for the Western District of Missouri.

MR. LLOYD SWORN IN.

Warmly Congratulated by the Democrats of the House.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10.—Hon. James T. Lloyd, the new Democratic member of the First Missouri District, reached Washington this morning, and was sworn in today. He was warmly greeted by the Democrats from the House and congratulated by the members of the House. Mr. Lloyd will remain at the Willard Hotel. He will make no arrangements for a permanent home in Washington until the regular session in December.

THE POOLING BILL.

Probability That It Will Go Over to the Regular Session.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10.—The Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce held a brief meeting and adjourned for a week without transacting any business beyond a cursory discussion of the advisability of reporting the pooling bill. To this proposition objection was made and it was not pressed. A Senator who is opposed to the bill remarked that so long as the House committee was not appointed it was useless for the Senate to work itself into a lather over the question. He said that if the bill is not reported by the next meeting to report the bill action will be taken. He said that if the bill is not reported by the next meeting to report the bill action will be taken.

Tillman's Magnanimity.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10.—Not long ago Gen. Wade Hampton, Commissioner of Railroads, said in a speech that he would speak to him he would insult him. Yesterday Senator Tillman, accompanied by Senators McPherson and several members of the South Carolina delegation, called at the White House to make a personal appeal for the retention in office of the General. They strengthened the plea with a statement about the General's health and the fact that the President told the party that it was representations had been made to him that he would have the General's resignation. He said in the meantime, however, he had the position to Gen. Long. As the bill was not reported, the President would permit him to do, the President said that Gen. Hampton should be considered as having been given a trip he desires to make to the Pacific coast, in an effort to regain his health.

Confirmations.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 10.—The Senate has confirmed the following nominations:

Henry L. Wilson of Washington, Minister to Chile.

John G. A. Leishman of Pennsylvania, Minister to Switzerland.

Lawrence Townsend of Pennsylvania, Minister to Portugal.

Andrew Barlow of Missouri, Consul General at the City of Mexico.

Also a number of Postmasters.

Nominations.

WASHINGTON, June 10.—The President today nominated Maurice D. O'Connell of Iowa to be Solicitor for the Treasury, and Wm. M. Griffith of Arizona Territory to be Marshal for the Territory of Arizona.

Treasury Statement.

COPIES OF HIGHWAYMEN.

MRS. FINLAY AND HER SISTER BRUTALLY ROBBED.

ANOTHER DAYLIGHT ASSAULT. The Robber Makes the Dash on Washington Avenue Near Ewing. With Scores of Witnesses.

Another daring highway robbery is called to the attention of the police. It occurred in broad daylight Wednesday morning on Ewing avenue, near Washington.

The victims were Mrs. Andrew M. Finlay, wife of the vice-president of the Water-Power Oil Company, and her sister, Miss Aleen Norton. The former's home is at 822 North Spring avenue and the latter's at 440 Laclede avenue.

The ladies alighted from a Lindell car at Ewing avenue for the purpose of calling at the office of Dr. W. C. Glasgow, 2847 Washington avenue.

When in front of the doctor's home a roughly-dressed man, who appeared to be a stranger, stepped from the car and bent her backward with his knees until she lay helpless across his leg. Then he seized her purse and silk scarf.

Both ladies say it was all over in a minute. Mrs. Finlay screamed and ran, but dropped the pocketbook and scarf.

Mrs. Finlay screamed for help, as in the meantime her purse had been snatched. She endeavored to procure the help of a nearby domestic, but the woman, too much frightened to assist in capturing the fugitive.

THE REASON FOR MURPHY'S SNEAK.

boy who could get up a better lie than that. As long as they wanted to say couldn't they invent something more reasonable? I discharged the fighters because there was no evidence that they were fighting for anything. How can there be a prize fight unless there is a prize fought for? The very word itself explains the point in issue. The reporter then mentioned to his friends that the pool-room cases were on his docket for trial on Friday and perhaps he wished to avoid them as well.

"Yes, I do," he said. "I have had enough of the pool-room cases. In fact I have had more than my share."

Judge Murphy then began to talk of his gardening and a moment later he was at it with his hoe again, vigorously cutting away some more weeds.

The position taken by Prosecuting Attorney Tom Mulvihill Wednesday was sustained by the Circuit Court Thursday and another provisional Judge was appointed for the court of Criminal Correction, pending Murphy's absence.

Mr. Mulvihill held that Senator Kiene occupied the bench. He is an office-holder. He feared error might enter into the proceedings and this view proved to be correct.

There was again a long delay in getting down to business Thursday morning. Fully a hundred witnesses were kept waiting and the clerks sat around and chatted. The delay was caused by the fact that the confusion he had caused, might appear. At 10:30 William E. Plisse appeared in court, armed with a document signed by Circuit Judge Spencer which authorized him to fill the vacancy on the bench, pending Murphy's absence.

The familiar call of the deputy sheriff rang out and the wheels of justice commenced to revolve.

The provisional Judge is a Republican and a prominent attorney. Before him will come the election cases and the pool-room cases, the most important of the year. The former involve the most flagrant abuse of the election laws ever brought to court. The latter are the most important of the year.

The Election Commissioners expressed their opposition to the removal of Judge Plisse from the bench.

Where is Judge Murphy to-day?

His Honor is not at home and the members of his family seem not to know his whereabouts.

At 11 o'clock Thursday morning a young man came to the Court House and called on the Judge. He saw a strange form on the bench and began to ask questions.

"This said he," the young man said, "my niece, Miss Blanks, who is a stenographer in the Federal building, lives at the Court House and said this morning, 'He left home at the usual hour and the members of his family thought he was going to court.'"

The young man reached the court-room, thinking his Honor might be somewhere listening to another dispute justice, but he did not look him up.

Probably the Judge went down the river with the Merchants' Exchange excursion, as he had intended to do so.

His next excursion may be up Salt River.

Senator Kiene appeared in Judge Spencer's court Thursday and asked to be excused from serving as provisional Judge. He was released. Judge Spencer then appointed W. E. Plisse to serve until Judge Murphy again makes his appearance.

"I appointed Senator Kiene provisional judge of Criminal Correction," he said, "because under the law, when the necessity of appointing such a Judge was made known, it became my duty to make such an appointment, and I knew Senator Kiene was a capable and learned lawyer and a proper man to act as such a Judge."

"When my duty was called to the fact that there was some doubt as to Senator Kiene's eligibility to fill the office, I said at once that whether as a matter of fact he was eligible or ineligible he would be considered, because if there was even a doubt about the question he should be appointed, and I therefore appointed William E. Plisse, whose ability and worth everyone knows."

When asked if it was not the province of the court to inquire into the question why Judge Murphy deserted his bench, Judge Spencer said: "It is not. The law simply says that when a vacancy occurs, the Circuit Court or any judge thereof, may make provisional appointments."

Judge I have no power to investigate why Judge Murphy left his bench. No matter if I know why he left, the result would be the same. All I could do would be to fill the vacancy. The Legislature of the State has the power of investigation, not the Circuit Judges."

Then Judge Spencer showed the reporter the law under which he made the provisional appointment. It is found in "Laws applicable to the city of St. Louis," page 212, section 4. Revised Statutes, 1885.

BUTY'S RUNAWAY WIFE.

Passed Through Villa Ridge With Her Boy Lover.

Farmer Buty's run-away wife, her boy lover and the stolen horse from Texas County, which have been the subject for search through Eastern Missouri, are reported by letter to have passed through Villa Ridge on Monday. Mounted on horses the couple were seen taking their course away from St. Louis.

Chief Harrigan received a letter from Postmaster George H. Morton at that village Thursday, saying that he had read the story of the elopement and pursuit in the Post-Dispatch and remembered seeing the couple pass his store.

Farmer Buty now fears that his horse is gone for good.

THE FOLEY TRIAL.

The Testimony Closed and the Arguments in Progress.

LIBERTY, Mo., June 10.—When William S. Foley entered the court room this morning his eyes bore the marks of a restless night, and his countenance was pallid. He was accompanied by his sister, two cousins and a number of friends.

Prosecuting Attorney Woodson read the instructions to the jury, and Senator Simons, attorney for the accused, followed with the instructions for the defendant. "The jury must find the defendant guilty if they believe the evidence presented to them is true and correct, and if they believe the defendant is innocent, according to the ordinary custom of law, but there is an added presumption because the defendant was the mother and sister of the defendant."
